

Hopkins 2014 Survey of New Students

By completing this survey or questionnaire, you are consenting to be in this research study. This survey is voluntary and you may answer as few or as many questions as you wish. The information collected will be kept strictly confidential, meaning that your name will not be attached to any responses and we will not report the data in a form that would identify any individual. Except for responses to open-ended questions, results will be presented in aggregate only, with one exception: academic advisors may be notified if students respond that they are likely to transfer to another institution. Aggregate responses will be used by Johns Hopkins for program evaluation and improvement. Aggregate responses may also be reported to accrediting bodies, national organizations or in Johns Hopkins publications and communications. Responses to open-ended questions (free responses) will be used to review academic programs, and may be read by faculty and university leaders. Accordingly, please do not respond in a way that would identify you personally. Your participation is very important and greatly appreciated! If you have questions about this survey, or encounter difficulties in taking it, please contact Dr. Teresa Wonnell at twonnell@jhu.edu.
